THE NEWEST THINGS FOUND IN SILVERWARE

French Pattern Shows Best Interpretation of Greek Art in Louis XIV. Period.

THE BUTLER FINISH USED

Iced Teaspoons and Pretty Napkin Clasps—Berry Creams and Sugars. The Veranda Nursery a Valuable Summer Addition to the Home.

One looks at the new Versailles silver, a Louis XVI. pattern, in sterling flatware, with admiration, for it exhibits some of the most salient characteristics of that famous period of art development. There is grace and beauty of form in the contour of the pieces, and the decoration is beautifully modeled and brought out in minute detail by fine eye work. Tiny touches crossed by arrows in their case, ribbons, scrolls and flowers surround the shield designed to hold the monogram, while the faintest of herbaceous laurel wreaths near the knife blade, spoon bowl, fork prongs or whatever the article may be. The finish is a butler, with the shield on the handles polished bright.

Many people imagine that "butler" was the name of the originator of that style and finish and that it was named for him. As a matter of fact, it was named because it resembles the dulled lustre of silver after it has been polished a number of times by the butler.

A new Colonial pattern, bearing the name of the Southern States, is also on the market. It is severely plain in design. An iced teaspoon, with a long, slender handle that has the simple purity of Greek art, has a lot of equally pleasing details not much older than itself. These spoons have other fields of usefulness than the stirring of the contents of an elongated iced-tea glass.

No modern table novelty has taken greater hold on popular favor than the napkin clasp, which is supplanting the napkin ring. The napkin lies flat on the table, and the clasp cannot roll nor become upset. One's monogram or cut-out initial is on the front. These are to be had in an endless variety of new and artistic designs.

The berry creams and sugars are remarkable for minute decorations and simplicity.

THE VERANDA NURSERY

A Summer Addition to the Home of Inestimable Value.

If it is at all possible, have a veranda nursery for the children this summer. Usually it is very easy to convert a veranda into a satisfactory one. Screens, hanging curtains or awnings adjusted so they can be lowered to shade it when the sun's rays strike it directly, and if possible, netting to keep out flies and insects, are all that is required.

Where there are boys whose climbing propensities are developing it may be necessary to heighten the fence by nailing up two or three bars; but the fence is usually sufficiently high.

A comfortable couch, their toys and large cushions big enough to lie or sit upon with ease, will do for the most modest of these out-of-door nurseries. If the children are large enough to manage it for themselves a hammock is most desirable. There is no better place for baby's afternoon nap. If his eyes are carefully shaded and he is protected by netting from the annoyance of flies.

The effect of fresh air will benefit the health and temper of the little ones, and their prattle lowers the noisiness out of door. One mother who served the children's luncheon on her veranda last year declared it well repaid her, and made the meal part of their play day.

The Iris.

Enjoy it. While we may, its leaf is a sword. Its heart is a lily. Its stem rises two or three feet. At the very top is a velvet flower of yore it was cream or richly purple.

Now, with the Jap and German varieties it varies. But most are content with the good old sorts.

The wild ones, indeed, are charming and may be transplanted. It was the flower of the French Kings named Louis—fleur de Louis. Being being then rather ro-as-you please, it soon became fleur-de-lis. There are magnificent beds of it, two grand ones at the Memorial Hall entrance to the park, and others in Lansdowne Valley.

WORTH KNOWING

Cocoanut matting may be cleaned with a large coarse cloth dipped in salt and water and then rubbed dry. Knives which have been used for kine and small of them can be cleaned by drawing them through a piece of carrot two or three times.

To remove hot-water marks from Japanese trays use sweet oil. Rub it well till all marks disappear, then polish the tray with dry flour and a soft cloth.

When gilt frames or molding of rooms have specks of dirt from flies and other causes upon them they may be cleaned with white of egg applied with a camel-hair brush.

To clean dust-stained alabaster ornaments make a paste of whiting, soap and milk. The paste must be left to dry on and then washed away, the surface being then dried with a cloth and then with a flannel, when the ornaments will be found clean and unharmed.

Never wrap steel or silver in a woolen cloth. Use softest tissue paper. Peel onions from the root upward and they will not make your eyes smart.

Save cold tea left from supper and use in place of water on your house plants.

Starch should be mixed with soapy water, for this the linen will have a more glossy appearance and be less likely to stick to the iron.

Silver teapots that have not been used for some time get musty and so give a peculiar flavor. This can be prevented by putting a lump of sugar into the pot before putting away.

Marks of matches on white paint will be found removable if the marks are rubbed with half a lemon and then washed with whiting, after which they should be rubbed well and dried thoroughly.

TRAIL ASSAULT OF OFFICER MOORE

Joseph Williams Is Arrested in Petersburg After Long Chase.

TRAMP GIVES AID TO POLICE
Accused Negro Believed by Police to Be a Desperate Character—Still Searching for the Other Man in Swamps.

After a twelve-hour search, Joseph Williams, colored, was arrested in Petersburg yesterday morning about 11 o'clock, and when brought back by Captain Alexander S. Wright and Police Officer C. T. Tinsley, was positively identified by Police Officer Michael J. Moore as one of the negroes who attacked him late Monday night. Adolphus Thrift, of 600 East Seventeenth Street, also told the officers that he was one of the men who had shot him earlier in the night. The negro was lodged in the City Jail pending a hearing before Justice H. A. Maurice this morning in Police Court, Part II.

Besides roughly handling him and taking his pistol, Mr. Moore said yesterday that his assailants had threatened his life. Williams was on the ground the negroes pointed a pistol in his face and were preparing to shoot him, but were probably frightened off by some one passing. Mr. Moore was not hurt.

No time was lost by the police in chasing the men after the report of the two crimes was made at the Third Police Station. Headed by Captain Wright, a squad of eleven policemen rushed to the Bainbridge Street crossing of the Atlantic Coast Line Railway, where the assault on Police Officer Moore occurred.

IN TRACING FUGITIVES
The negroes were traced out Seventeenth Street, and were headed off in an attempt to board a train for Washington. About 3 o'clock a tramp, resembling Williams, was told by Moore that two men had pointed a gun at him while he was sleeping in a box car of the Atlantic Coast Line, about a mile from the city, and told him to "beat it."

He never stopped returning until he reached the police station. The train moved shortly afterward, and it is thought that the negroes reached Petersburg in this way.

About 5 o'clock the Petersburg police notified Captain Wright that the negroes had been seen in that vicinity. Captain Wright and Officer Tinsley kept up the chase after the Petersburg officers had given up, trailing their men through swampy lands and across streams. Williams was caught while pawing his pistol in a Petersburg shop.

The police expect to catch the other alleged assailant of Police Officer Moore shortly, and think they have him located in the swamps near Petersburg. About 3 o'clock yesterday morning it was discovered that a plate glass in the store of H. M. Burrows, at Twenty-second and Hull Streets, had been broken by large stones. It is believed to be the work of these negroes. The officers arrived in time, however, to prevent anything from being stolen.

To Have Perfect Skin Throughout the Summer
These days the face needs special care and attention. Flying dust and dirt, the heating sun are severe on any skin. Their despoiling effects are best overcome by the application of pure mercurized wax. This keeps skin and face in a healthy condition, the complexion beautifully white and spotless. Discarded, freckled and roughened cuticle are actually absorbed by the mercurized wax, obtainable at any drug store. It is used like cold cream, allowed to remain on overnight, and washed off in the morning.

As the skin tends to expand in warm weather, causing wrinkles to form, a good skin cream should be used. It is a 1 oz. powdered azoic in 1 pint witch hazel. Baste the face in this during the day, or before going out for theatre or social affairs. It is a remarkable skin tighten and wrinkle eraser.—Advertisement.
